

Facilitating a Mentor Group - Facilitator Questions

Following up on the scenario, it's time to test mentors to get a sense of their thought process during different situations.

Q: You have read the medical information for the students in your mentor group. You know that one student has ASD (Autism Spectrum Disorder) and another student is transgender. How would you address these topics during the first mentor group session (if at all)?

- A: Welcome all students to the program. Do not disclose any information in a student's medical info to the full group, all information should be private and it is up to the student whether or not they would like to share. Some students may not want to disclose an ASD diagnosis or that they are trans. Medical information can be helpful to understand how to better support students, and if there are any concerns you can bring it up to the student in private and let them know that they can come to you for support.
