

Scenario

During lunch, a group of students is sitting together joking and talking. One student makes a comment about another student's accent and follows it with, "I'm just kidding—you know I don't mean anything by it."

A few students laugh, but the student who the comment was directed toward becomes quiet and disengaged for the rest of the meal. Later, another student tells a mentor that "it happens a lot" and that the student just "tries to ignore it."

When the mentor approaches the student who made the comment, they respond, "Everyone jokes like that—it's not a big deal. They didn't even say they were upset."

- Is there a concern here? Why or why not?
- At what point does this behavior become a violation?
- Your move as a leader?