Activating a Support Plan

There may be experiences on our programs that cause participants to experience new symptoms or increase pre-existing mental health symptoms. While it can be difficult to predict when these experiences can occur, having a plan before joining a program may help to increase your confidence as well as help your supporters understand how to best assist you while navigating new or unexpected challenges while participating in our program. We encourage you to complete the following questions and review them with your support system (family, significant other, friends, treatment team, etc.).
