

Things that work well for neurodiverse students

- ★ Program Structure is Essential. Rely on the program structure to lead the student.
 - Time Management: Ensuring that your itinerary is always written & visible to all students
 - Present Important Information in Small Chunks - let students ask questions & understand without feeling overwhelmed. This may mean having a separate 1:1 conversation with student
 - Allowing more buffer time between activities

Other ways to support neurodiverse students:

- ★ Mentors
 - Connect w/students on best way to communicate need or support them
 - Are they a good fit for providing support?
- ★ Group Activities or Chaotic Environments
 - Make sure to give specific instructions and ask if there are any questions about them
 - Let students know to check in with you if they are feeling overwhelmed
 - Allow use of headphones or mental breaks.
 - Students still must follow supervision policies and cannot separate alone in public/without group of 3

Accommodations &
Coachings for
Neurodivergent Teens