

Scenario 1

- It's ½ way through the first 2 week session at Barnard and your ACD comes to you (CD) sharing that a student (Charlotte) came to her and shared that :
 - According to Charlotte (who is 14 years old, youngest on the program by far), last night after lights out, 2 of our male students, Logan and Jack, snuck up to one of the female dorm rooms to do drugs and hang out. This room is shared between Charlotte and Abby. Allie, Hayley and Riley, other female students from different dorm rooms, also joined the boys.
 - Riley and Logan proceeded to get into one of the dorm beds and started engaging in sexual acts. Jack got into Abby's bed but it is not confirmed what they were doing. According to Charlotte, this ended when another student, Nick, walked into the room and saw everything. The boys then got out of the beds and ran down to their rooms.
 - Staff on the ground immediately investigated the entire situation (pulled students aside individually to question) and had a few students admit to being in the others room as Charlotte shared, but NO students admit to the full details and certainly not in any sexual acts, they all claimed they were just "hanging out."
 - The only evidence of COC violation found was boys being in girls rooms.
 - What do you do next?
